

This is to witness that on the 26th day of February 2007

The George S. Wise Medal

was awarded to

Richard C. Holbrooke

in recognition of his remarkable achievements over three decades in advancing global dialogue and amity between nations; his key role as a senior United States diplomat and policymaker, especially in Asia and Europe; his outstanding contribution to peace in the former Yugoslavia as chief architect of the Dayton agreement; his commitment to humanitarian values as US Ambassador to the UN; and his enrichment of academic knowledge and understanding in the field of international relations, particularly through his stewardship of the Asia Society.
